WHAT'S NEXT? EARLY HIGH SCHOOL

In early high school, students learn to boldly explore new ideas, articulate thoughts in precise and vivid language, and discuss important issues with others. To become skilled thinkers and communicators, students must encounter a variety of writing genres. We estimate each class is worth ¼ of a year-long high school credit.

Students work directly with an instructor in these classes.

(Arrows indicate ways to flow through our program)

